In a career spanning 25-years, Jarrod has held senior positions and worked in all aspects of sales, marketing, product management, strategic planning and business development. He has been instrumental in driving exponential growth in public and private companies providing networking, communications and security solutions for cloud, data enter, enterprise and service provider networks.

Prior to joining Napatech, Jarrod has held executive positions in several successful hi-tech companies, most recently at Netronome, where he was responsible for the company's growth into a strong leader in programmable networking solutions. He has also held marketing and advisory roles in start-up network and security companies including NetBeez and ThreatQuotient, among others. Recently, he has also been involved in developing business opportunities fueled by new technologies for server and network virtualization, software defined networking and network functions virtualization.

"I am thrilled to be joining the Napatech team at this time of incredible opportunity, created by the new mobile-cloud era," said Jarrod. "Napatech is well poised for its growth ambitions, helping customers to build high-performance and cost-effective solutions for networking and security applications. I look forward to applying my expertise to leverage industry trends and drive revenue growth, while being a part of an incredibly innovative team."

"Jarrod brings extraordinary business expertise and marketing leadership to Napatech," said Henrik Brill. His insight and industry knowledge will help us elevate the Napatech brand, stimulate increased demand for our solutions and drive revenue growth across our entire product portfolio. We are delighted to welcome Jarrod to Napatech as our new Chief Marketing Officer."
